

Volunteer mentors required

VOLUNTEER mentors are being sought for Jobs South West's Abilities Mentoring Program, which provides caring and offers training for young people with disabilities.

Several people access the program, which has been operating for 18 months, but coordinator Rhett Topliss said there was a waiting list of about 15 people.

The program provides training and offers social activities and guidance and development for mentors.

Kaiden Bell, 17, who uses the service, said the program helped him get into two training courses.

Katie Soulos, 20, said the program had allowed her to connect with her mentor and she enjoyed the social activities.

To become a volunteer mentor, contact Rhett on 9725 5033 or by email at rhett@jobs-sw.com.au

Rhett Topliss, left, is looking for mentors to care for young people with disabilities, such as Kaiden Bell and Katie Soulos. PICTURE: DEREK POOL